SEASIDE'S AUTOMOTIVE CENTER MOVES BOLDLY FOWARD

GROUNDBREAKING ceremonies for the Sam Matar Cypress Motors and Mazda dealership which is opening its new outlet in the Gateway Center in Seaside were held last week. The new auto dealership will join those already established at the project, which is under the administration of the Seaside Redevelopment Agency. Those present for the ceremony were: (from left) Mayor B.J. Dolan, Councilman Steve Ross, City Mgr. Dudley Lapham, Sam Matar, Harold Camacho, executive director of the redevelopment agency, and Councilmen Joe Cota and Oscar Lawson. (John Perkins photo).

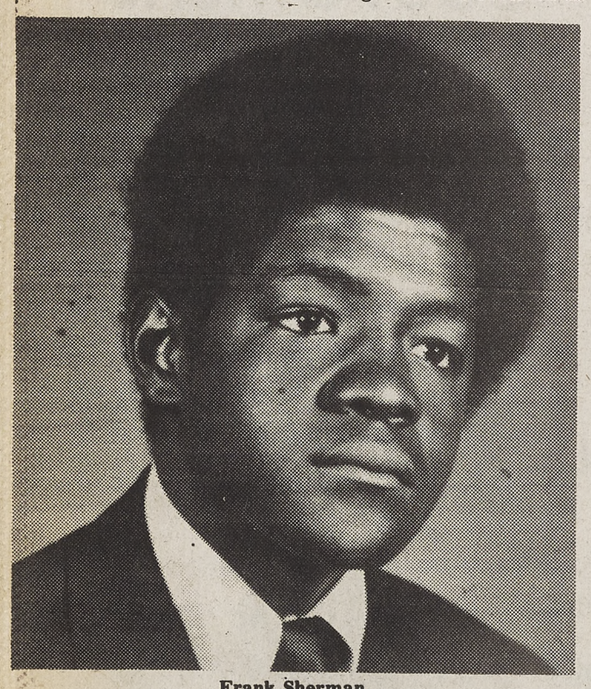
A NEW TENANT in the Gateway Center, Seaside's modern automotive center brought to fruition through the Seaside Redevelopment Agency, opened doors last week. The new auto agency is Singleton Chevrolet, and official ceremonies were held in honor of that event. Helping to hoist the flag were: (from left) Mayor B.J. Dolan, Councilman Glenn Olea, Councilman Joe Cota, Monterey County Supervisor Roger Poyner, Councilman Oscar Lawson, and Ernie Singleton, owner of the new dealership. (John Perkins photo).

Black student at MPC tries to open others' eyes

The emergence of Black Student Unions and ethnic studies coincided with and paralleled each other on American college campuses. But Frank Sherman, the 19-year-old president of the BSU at Monterey Peninsula College, believes ethnic studies are largely a waste of time.

"We don't need to know any more about ourselves," Sherman said. "We need to learn about the rest of the world. Ethnic studies is one of the biggest jokes that's come along; it's just a game."

Sherman is accustomed to having his views received as extraordinary. Last year, when he was a fledging member of the BSU, he tried to persuade other members to push for a statewide organization of junior college Black Student Unions.



Frank Sherman

"Everybody told me I was crazy," he recalls. Now, this year, that dream has become a reality, largely through the efforts of the BSU at Monterey Peninsula College. The first statewide convention of Black Student Unions is scheduled for June 7 and 8 at the Holiday Inn in Monterey, with Rep. Ron Dellums of Berkeley as guest speaker.

Sherman, who lives at 1565 Harding, Seaside, can also point with justifiable pride to his recent nomination for inclusion in the publication "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges." For Sherman, who's majoring in hotel-motel-restaurant management, that recognition is symbolic of a complete change of attitude he underwent in recent years.

For most of his early years, Sherman said he was treated like a failure, and began to think of himself as such. He was expelled from Monterey High School in his senior year after being accused of breaking into a locker and was told he could never make it to college.

A few months after his expulsion, Sherman was talking with a group of some athlete friends on the campus of Monterey High when marijuana was discovered by a school official on the person of one of the group, and his six friends were expelled, too.

This led to a threat of legal action by the school against Sherman, which he says was later dropped for lack of evidence. Then, Sherman enrolled in continuation school.

"That's nothing more than a dummy school," he said, with characteristic bluntness. "Then I went to night school, and found out that my teacher there was the same one I had in the sixth grade."

Sherman languished for several more months before enrolling at MPC last year.

"When I came here, I was sort of lost," he said. "I'd had it burned in the back of my mind that I could never do anything."

Sherman then got involved with basketball at the college, with the hope of someday becoming a professional athlete. But, once again, he found himself dead-ended because he had not played in high school, and he felt that the athletic clique was hard to break into.

About that time, the Black Student Union received a letter from Skyline College in San Bruno, asking if members of the local BSU might know of basketball players who would be interested in joining a new team. So, to help raise funds for that enterprise, Sherman managed to get the local BSU to commit $300.

That had the additional beneift of opening his eyes to

Bicentennial committee to hold picnic May 18

Seaside begins its celebration of the American Bicentennial with a barbecue from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, May 18 at Cutino Park. A full day of food, music, and fun is planned.

Included in the barbecue will be Army exhibits, ethnic dances, an Army band, game booths, children's games, singing groups, and steaks, hot dogs, beer and soft drinks.

The event is planned not only to kick off the celebration of the nation's 200th birthday, but also as a fundraiser for the activities of the Seaside Bicentennial Committee.

Some of the activities which the committee has mapped out for itself include the visit of the California Wagon Train Expedition to the Monterey Peninsula Sept. 28. Other activities throgh the year will include monthly exhibits at city hall by ethnic artists and monthly ethnic festivals.

The committee is especially searching for any historical photos, documents, artifacts, or memorabilia relating to the early days of Seaside to be displayed in the community room of the new municipal library, now nearing completion.

In addition, the committee plans to frame and display those documents and items of historical interest which it acquires. A Bicentennial parade is scheduled for July 3, 1976, and a drum and bugle corps field contest for July 2, 1976.

The committee recommended at its regular meeting last Monday that the city council authorize a budget of $2,820 for various expenses.

The budget includes $320 for the production of a logo, $100 for picture framing, $200 for glass cases, $500 for postage, $300 for printing, $200 for rentals, $500 for overtime expenses to city employes, $500 for travel, and $200 in miscellaneous expenses.

The committee plans to repay whatever funds are advanced by the city council from its various fund-raising activities, such as the kickoff picnic and barbecue.

One member of the committee remarked at the last meeting that the federal government had pre-empted local governments from selling distinctive Bicentennial medallions by issuing its own medallions, while at the same time encouraging local participation in the celebration.

Some other suggestions under consideration by the committee include issuing a souvenir booklet, encouragement of a city c leanup campaign, and the possibility of painting all the city's fire plugs red, white and blue.

The committee meets the third Monday of each month in city hall.

Judge decries exclusion of minorities in history books

Judge William Booth of the New York Criminal Court told a crowd of students, faculty, staff and visitors to MPC's first Ethnic Awareness Day that colleges and educational institutions cannot continue to teach "only half of American history to our students and expect them to be educated."

Booth said it is a great tragedy when educational institutions exclude the great contributions of Indians, Blacks, Chinese, Spanish and other ethnic minorities from ths history books. "And if the teachers don't each it, the students can't learn about it."

Judge Booth, who rose to professional status in the Criminal Court system of New York, said that the true history of America and contributions by people of ethnic minority heritage have been kept from students too long and it is time that this be changed in institutions throughout the United States.

He praised MPC's faculty and staff for their efforts and attempts to bring about a change in the traditional educational philosophy through its Ethnic Studies Division. He said all educational institutions should be attempting to bring people together to live in harmony, and use our resources for the benefit of all instead of just a few selected groups.

More than 800 students, faculty, and staff, and local residents attended the first Ethnic Awareness Day at Monterey Peninsula College on April 4.

James C. Stevenson Sr., chairman of the Ethnic Studies Division, and organizer of the Ethnic Awareness Day, called it a huge success.

The main purpose in observing Ethnic Awareness Day, a day that brought five different ethnic minority groups together, was to bring various ethnic groups on the peninsula together to make the community aware of the various lifestyles and heritage of the groups, and to raise funds for the Ethnic Studies Division scholarship fund.

Stevenson labeled it as successful in both areas. He said was the first time in history of the college when five or more different ethnic minority groups came together to sponsor a day of activities illustrating ethnic crafts, arts, culture and entertainment, sprinkled with a variety of delicious specialty food items common to Chinese, Japanese, Chicano, Filipino, native Americans, blacks and Spanish minorities.

The festivities started at 11 a.m. with Dean of Instructors Dave Hopkins giving a few introductory remarks

JUDGE WILLIAM BOOTH, (center) who rose to professional status in the criminal court system and presently presides in one of the judicial courts in Brooklyn, delivered the keynote address on Ethnic Awareness Day. Lilyan Eldred (left), past president MPC Board of Trustees, and George Faul, college president, discuss the day's events with Judge Booth. Proceeds from the sale of food during the day went into a scholarship fund for students.

Laguna Grande engineering extended

The Seaside Redevelopment Agency granted a maximum extension of $35,000 on an engineering contract for its Laguna Grande Project to George Bestor and Associates last week.

The actual amount of the amendment to the existing contract is for $27,000 to $35,000 for services in preliminary engineering studies, updating of maps, design coordination, and final grading plans and specifications for a drainage culvert connecting Laguna Grande Lake with Lake Roberts.

Executive Director Harold Camacho said there is a possibility of a variance in the actual cost of the services of some $8,000. The amendment was made to an already-approved contract in the amount of $12,000 to Bestor for the culvert project, which will cross Del Monte Boulevard.

The agency conducted a public hearing at which no one spoke, on a request for a use permit for a two-story residence at 1505 Mescal in the Del Monte Heights Project. The use permit was approved.

An offer of $5,550 for a parcel of land in the Del Monte Heights subdivision was also approved by the agency's board of directors.

In a separate action, the board approved a 90-day extension of the Neighborhood Development Plan through June 30, until the transition to a new method of funding under the community development block grant system can be implemented. The action year normally would have lapsed March 31.

WINNERS of the essay contest at Ord Grove School recently wrote on the theme: "If Martin Luther King were alive today, the world would be a better place because..." The Students competed in all grade levels, and top entries were read by their authors, all of whom received books as prizes. The winners were: (front row, left to right) Francine Eclavea, fifth grade; Angela Mitchell, fourth; Roy Kerns, fourth; Roger Moises, third; anita Ashurst, third; Kindra Shelby, third; Lawrence Acree, third; (back, from left) Tim Bristol, sixth; Frans Beelaard, third; Sherry Gordon, fourth; Sam Brown, fourth; Jerri Evanoff, third; Michael Martin, third. 'We need to learn about the rest of the world' both campus politics and the possibilities of positive action. Frank Sherman took a long, hard look at himself, and decided to make some changes.

He concentrated on his studies, passed all his classes the first semester, and worked hard to stay on the basketball team. But then he became discouraged when he wasn't involved in actual game play as much as he wanted.

Sherman was then offered a summer job with a restaurant in Sacramento, which he accepted, looking forward as he was for a chance to get away from Seaside to sort out his life, and to practice his basketball. That's what he did all summer, until he returned to school this fall, ready to play again.

Again, he met with frustration, and he quit the basketball team. But he found a renewed commitment to the Black Student Union, and he was elected its president this year. He now maintains a 3.0 grade average, and he plans to enroll in a four-year college when he finishes at MPC.

"I would like to be a chef; I love to cook," Sherman said. He makes all sorts of pastries and wine dishes, which he prepares to serve to friends who periodically come to visit from the Bay Area.

Sherman feels that his change of heart and direction was prompted by his own realization that there was more to "getting high and rapping" with other students, and because he wanted to prove himself that he could do something constructive with his life.

"I realized that I was just wasting my time when I came here," he said. "One of the sisters kept talking about having a 'master plan' so I had to find myself, and then I could go in a direction where I could get some positive results.

"Everybody has been telling me that I couldn't do anything. I wanted to prove to myself I could do it, and to set an example for my brothers and sisters."

Sherman is one of 10 children; his father is a career Army man at Fort Ord. Despite his about-face, Sherman does not consider himself particularly religious, although he does confess that he's more tolerant than he once was.

"I used to have to go to church when I was a kid. That turned me off to it. And then I got sick and tired of all that Jesus freak stuff, too." Sherman says he's not a disbeliever, and not a total believer, either.

Sherman believes his coming into high school in the late 1960s probably was a detriment, since so many young people were being lured into the "hippie" lifestyle, into drugs, and into what he considers false values.

Now he has taken stock of his own strengths and weaknesses, and he's taking steps to remedy the trouble spots. For one thing, Sherman is working hard to improve his writing and language skills, which he considers deficient.

He gets tutoring assistance, and works at the learning center on the MPC campus in an effort to improve his skills. Realizing the high incidence of similar problems among other black students, Sherman tried to encourage other BSU members to institute a regular study session in the library, where students would assist each other with problem areas.

The period was established for 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, but Sherman is distressed that other students haven't taken part as much as he'd hoped. He ascribes this to their own unwillingness to admit their weaknesses and to remedy them.

"I tell them every day we need to do this, but nobody comes there," Sherman said. "The truth is that they come here for two years and get out, and then they find that they don't really have anything. It seems like young people don't

A remembrance of things past

TWENTY YEARS AGO
From the Seaside News-Sentinel
April 28, 1955

Formation of its first Junior Chamber of Commerce was initiated in Seaside this week with the formal calling of a meeting for tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Robert G. Seamans of 1780 Noche Buena, former executive secretary of the California Retail Jewelers Association, and currently a Seaside post office employe, issued the call for the first meeting to all young men between the ages of 21 to 35 years of age.

A former member of the San Francisco Junior Chamber, Mr. Seamans has had previous extensive experience in similar organizational work.

Chief Davis Questions Radar Need

"I see no particular need for a radar speed-control system in municipalities," said Seaside Police Chief John Davis, when questioned regarding the present controversy over pending legislation before the state to authorize the use of radar.

"I have seen the system work successfully," said Davis, "on the open highway. But its function is limited in cities and the bad thing about it, is that it builds up public resistance to law enforcement."

The California State Automobile Association this week came out flatly against such legislation, claiming the use of radar to control prima facie zone speeds would lead to a harassment of motorists.

Seaside Soldier Awaits Word on $37,000 Lawsuit

Sgt. First Class Bruno W. Ritter, 27, of the 6th Infantry Division Faculty, of 685 Jessie St., Seaside, is anxiously awaiting word from his lawyers in Heidelberg, Germany, concerning a pending 150,000 Mark lawsuit he has filed against the I.G. Farben Company of Germany.

Ritter's claim against the corporation arose from alleged whippings and "slave labor" performed at Auschwitz Buna Werke concentration camp while being forced to work for the large chemical company during World War II.

Here is the story reported by Ritter:

The claim, which amounts to approximately $37,000, was filed by him on March 30, 1954, and the trial is scheduled to begin soon in Frankfort, Germany. Sgt. Ritter, who speaks and writes Russian, German, Polish, Czech, Ukranian and English, was a 4th Division Infantry interpreter in Frankfort when the claim was filed. He arrived at Fort Ord from the 4th Division last April 1.

He was first imprisoned when he was 13. Between 1941 and 1946, he passed through such notorious camps as Dachau and Buchenwald. He reports that his entire family, except one brother who lives in Poland, was exterminated in concentration camps.

Four days after the Nazis began their march into Poland, planes, guns, and troops moved into Ritter's hometown, Krakow. Then the Soviets came from the opposite direction, occupying Ritter's section of the town.

In June, 1941, when the Nazis drove the Soviets out, Ritter's parents were arrested and sent to a concentration camp near Krakow. He never heard from them again.

Ritter was sent to a labor camp near Krakow and, after an escape attempt failed, was moved to a concentration camp. He eventually escaped from a prison train.

'Ah, the Flights of Ducks Across the Sky'

Phil Leist has seen a lot of water flow over the dam since his family came to Seaside back in 1906 -- not to mention earthquakes, fires and floods.

Now the proprietor of Phil and Ida's Cafe on Del Monte Avenue, Phil is that rarest of birds, a genuine native son, born on the Peninsula in 1900.

His father, George Leist, was an old Indian fighter. Enlisting in New York originally, George Leist was shipped first to San Francisco, then to the Dakotas--just in time for the long and exhausting campaign that ended in the defeat of Sitting Bull in the Indian Wars.

America was never too proud of these wars, and there was not too much publicity, but for sheer courage and staying power, the men who took part in them have rarely been surpassed.

Afterwards, they hauled the troops back to San Francisco, and just to keep them in condition, used to let them hike from the Golden Gate to Monterey on long, forced marches. George Leist fell in love with the Peninsula, however, and when his term was up, returned here for good.

Royball Speaks for Fred Farr

A special luncheon in honor of Fred Farr, candidate for State Senate from the district, will be given this Saturday at 12:30 in the afternoon. The affair, a smorgasbord luncheon, will be sponsored by the Seaside Women for Farr and will be held at the Methodist Hall, Elm and Fourth, in Seaside, said Mrs. Loretta Pollack of 513 Palm Ave.

The list of speakers at the affair will be headed by Ed Roybal, former Democratic candidate of Lieutenant Governor, and the man who polled more votes than any other on the Democratic ticket in the last election.

Members of the committee working on sponsoring the luncheon include Mae Sweeney, Marge Patton, Barbara Hawes, Dorothy Phelan, Janet Mayo, Mrs. Jack Oldemeyer, Jeanette Mayo, Bessie Kramer, Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Thomas. Admission to the affair will be 50 cents.

Vaughn Shoemaker to Draw at Center

Vaughn Shoemaker, the famed cartoonist, will appear at the Seaside Youth Center this coming Tuesday evening, May 3, at 7:15. He will present a movie on cartoons as well as samples of work and methods of operation.

Everyone interested in cartooning is invited to attend the talk, said Mrs. Nadine Vogel, director of the Youth Center.

City Had Balance of $11,576.48

There was a total of $21,297.65 on deposit as of the end of March to the credit of the City of Seaside, Hiram Bishop auditor, reported to the city council meeting this past week.

Of this amount, $11,576.48 was on deposit with the city treasurer, and $9,721.17 rested with the state treasurer.

Bishop's report added that during the month of March, some $2,191.89 was received in the city's coffers while $4,821.10 was expended during the same 30-day period.

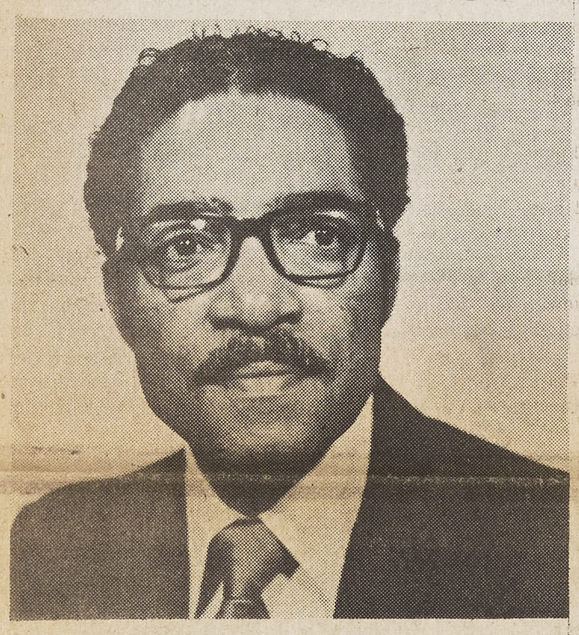
Ebony Seaview Golf Club is an institution in Seaside

Golf, long thought of as a predominantly suburban, white, middle class sport, has become a fixture in the social fabric of Seaside, through the Ebony Seaview Golf Club, which traces its origins to six years ago.

The club is actually a merger of the old Elks Golf Club, which was started in 1969 in affiliation with Elks Lodge 1320 in Seaside, later called the Ebony Golf Club, and the Seaview Golf Clug. The merger in 1974 was accomplished more out of a love for the sport than because of turf politics.

Bill Hill, secretary of the club and a member since its inception, said the two clubs were merged simply to give golf greater viability and a wider range of participants in Seaside.



CALVIN REEVES

Now, with 75 members, the Ebony Seaview Golf club has several women members, and is proud of the fact it is not all black, either.

"We're the only black golf club in Seaside, only we're not all black," Hill said. Membership of the club comes from all occupational roles. There are teachers, constructions workers, police employes, business people, and retired military, to name but a few. Seaside photographer John Perkins is also an avid member.

The club holds regular tournaments for members twice a month at various golf courses around the Monterey Peninsula, as well as outside the area. There have been matches in San Jose, Alameda, and Hollister, also. There is also an annual golf tournament for members in September; this year's event is scheduled at Rancho Canada in Carmel Valley.

Calvin Reeves, an adult probation officer for Monterey County, was recently invited as a representative of the Ebony Seaview Golf Club to play in the Lee Elder Celebrity Pro-Am in Virginia May 9, 10, and 11.

Reeves will be playing shoulder-to-shoulder with such professional golfers as Lee Elder (a cousin, incidentally), Bob Murphy, Jim Wicker, and others. There will be a number of celebrities on hand, including Fip Wilson and Joe Louis.

A total of 120 amateurs will play, and the professional purse amounts to $10,000. Reeves was a charter member of the Seaview Golf Club, and has been playing golf for about 15 years. The invitation to play in the Elders Pro-Am is "a real feather in the cap" for the Ebony Seaview Golf Club, he believes.

Ira Lively, another member of the club, is a police juvenile officer in Seaside. She sees golf not only as a recreational outlet for adults, but also as a form of "delinquency prevention" for young people. The club provides instruction and equipment to encourage youngsters to spend their time in constructive, wholesome activities that will prevent misdeeds.

"It definitely helps with delinquency prevention," she observed. "Any organized, healthy activity is a form of delinquency provention."

The club will arrange for golf equipment, supplies and lessons for those young people who are interested but who can't afford them, in a type of "big brother" community improvement effort. In addition, handicaps are arranged in such a way that everyone--experienced golfer or neophyte--can participate and enjoy the sport.

Last year, the club donated $100 toward a Western States Golf Association youth scholarship supported by member golf clubs, which is awarded annually to a deserving young golfer.

In the process of playing a fun and rewarding sport, members of the Ebony Seaview Golf Club have found other dimensions to their experience, as well. For one thing, they've found that breaking down artificial barriers includes sex, as well as skin color.

Ira Lively, who indicated there were few women members when she joined, now feels that the attitudes on the part of all club members toward women are supportive and encouraging.

"Our club is an ideal place to learn to play golf," she said. "They constantly encourage you. Even handicapped people play. One of our members has an artificial leg."

Interested or prospective members are encouraged to participate in Ebony Seaview Golf Club functions and to find out for themselves how much fun golf can be.

Monterey Diocese to change regulations

The Roman Catholic Church in the Diocese of Monterey will put into effect on Sept. 1 some new legislation regarding marriages.

Twenty-five percent of the marriages in the United States end in divorce. According to the National Center of Health Statistics, 56 per cent of all divorces occur before the parties involved reach the age of 24.

Thirty-three per cent of all divorced couples are teenagers. Sixty-two per cent of all divorced men and 75 per cent of all divorced women are under 25 years of age at the time of marriage. The Family Life Division of the United States Catholic Conference states that nearly 50 per cent of teen-age marriages end in divorce.

The Catholic Church recognises the authority of the state to establish legitimate restrictions on the capability to marry. The right to marry is not seen as an unrestricted right. The Catholic Church also established laws for its church members.

Therefore, in order to help young people eager to marry, and also to assist their parents, who have a responsibilty before God toward their children, the following norms will become effective for all Catholics in the Diocese of Monterey in California, on Sept. 1.

--A four month minimum will be required between the couple's first notification to the parish priest of their intention to marry and the date to be set for the wedding. This will apply to every marriage.

--A marriage assessment will be required of every marriage in order to help the parties view marriage realistically as well as in its second aspects and sacramental dimensions.

--A special marriage evaluation by a professional

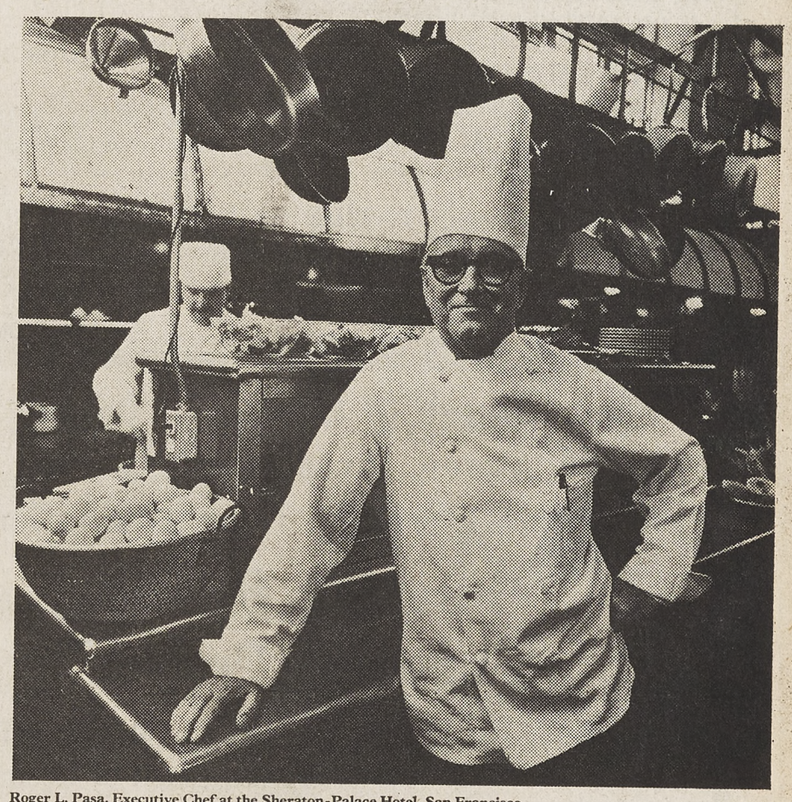
We cut cooking energy costs $1900 in one year at the Sheraton-Palace.
Here's how to save in your own kitchen.



Roger L. Pasa, Executive Chef at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, San Francisco.

By conserving gas and electricity here in the Sheraton-Palace kitchen, we were able to save $1900. And we didn't use any secret recipe, either. In fact, you can easily use many of our energy saving methods in your own kitchen:

Refrigerators and freezers use energy 24 hours a day...so they might be the best place to start your energy conservation program. For example, your refrigerator may be set colder than necessary. You'll find the proper setting in the appliance manual.

Also, a refrigerator door that seals poorly—or that's left open too much—lets heat in and makes your refrigerator work harder. And in units that need manual defrosting, it also means faster frost build-up that reduces cooling ability. So, it's smart to defrost when the ice gets about ¼ inch thick.

If you cook with gas, shut off the stove burners and oven immediately after you're finished. Also, when heating water to boil, adjust the flame so the tip just touches the bottom of the pan; any higher than that and you're wasting energy.

On electric ranges, shut off the burner just before the food is done and let the heat stored in the coils finish the job.

Try preparing a complete meal in the oven using meats and vegetables that cook well at similar temperatures. Don't preheat the oven, and don't keep peeking. And let meats thaw overnight in the refrigerator—you'll cut cooking time by a third.

And remember, a good chef never overcooks. Because overcooking not only destroys the flavor...but wastes energy.

Save energy-you'll save money, too.

Concerts to be included in county fair

Concerts will be part of the 1975 Monterey County Fair following a vote of approval by the fair's board of directors this week for Ron Nance, Oklahoma City promoter, to take over Pattee Arena on the Friday and Saturday nights of the fair, August 29 and 20.

Nance, who is also part-owner of the Salinas Packers baseball club, said that his "number one choice" for Friday night would be singer Olivia Newton-John, and for Saturday night Tom T. Hall and Donna Fargo, but he could not promise that these would be the actual performers. Purchasers of tickets for the concert (the artists will, of course, be announced in advance) will also receive admission to the fair with 60 cents from each ticket going for fair revenues according to Nance's agreement with the board.

The question of what to do with Pattee Arena during the fair has been approached various ways since the National Horse Show set for July 31-Aug. 9 has been separated from the fair, and the concert idea, used by many county fairs, is this year's approach.

At Tuesday's meeting the board took no action on a request from six community organizations that the charge of 20 per cent of the gross take, the charge for all refreshment concessions, be lowered to 10 per cent for their concessions. Bernard Anderson, Carmel mayor, spoke for the six--Monterey Kiwanis Club, Pacific Grove Kiwanis Club, Monterey Peninsula Knights of Columbus, Monterey Peninsula Jaycees, Temple Beth Israel and Carmel Host Lions Club.

George Vise, secretary-manager, presented the new five-year building program which still includes a roof for Pattee Arena. Also included is a $100,000 home economics building, which Wise said should be ready for the 1976 fair, and plans for a $30,000 development of the present "Hunt Club gate," which is in effect the main gate to the fairgrounds, because of parking patterns and bus service.

Wise also presented plans for a temporary face-lifting at this gate for the 1975 fair, incorporating the Rainbow theme and involving an arbor with blooming plants. Ed Greco of Carmel is the designer.

Board members also approved publication of a tabloid newspaper insert to publicize the fair, with Ed Pio, public relations and special events director, in charge.

Upward Bound project gets federal funds

The U. S. Office of Education has awarded a $40,000 grant to the Monterey Peninsula College Veterans Upward Bound program, John Rivers, associate dean of student personnel, has announced.

He said the grant, which is for 1975-76, was awarded on a competitive basis based upon the program's performance during the current year and goals for the coming year.

The Upward Bound program is designed to prepare veterans to take college-level courses at post-secondary institutions. Veterans who need it get special help in reading, writing, math and science skills necessary to do college work.

Rivers said MPC started the program, first known as Veterans Educational Transition, in the fall of 1973. Ninety students graduated during the first year. The U.S. Office of Education awarded a $53,000 grant to help fund the program's operation for 1974-75 and more than 150 veterans have participated this year, he said.

The Veterans Upward Bound program is located at MPC's Veteran's Center in Seaside's Olympia Plaza.

Youth in Government Day scheduled May 1

The City of Seaside in conjunction with Seaside High School will be sponsoring a Youth in Government Day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 1.

Junior high and high school students will participate in various scheduled activities during the day at city hall. The program has been scheduled as follows.

The Seaside Youth Commission will conduct a student work shop from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, with a central theme focusing on human relations as it relates to Seaside youth. For this program 12 students will be invited to attend the work shop from Fremont Junior High School, King Junior High School, Seaside High School and Monterey High School.

From 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., student government youth from Seaside High School will exchange rolls with the mayor, councilmen, the city manager and his various department heads.

These youth will go through the experience of conducting the city's business during the afternoon. A mock city council meeting will be held from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Rummage sale set for May 3

The Annual Spring Rummage Sale, one of Carmel's older institutions, will be held Saturday May 3 at All Saints' Church Parish Hall, Lincoln at Ninth Avenue from 9:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

A benefit for the All Saints' Churchwomen's local and missionary programs and All Saints' Day School, the event has attracted big crowds of bargain seekers and fun lovers in the past 38 years.

In addition to the traditional rummage sale of antiques, clothing, appliances and home furnishings, the sale will also feature many new articles of clothing and other items donated by local merchants including an attractive table of fresh vegetables to be sold at pre-inflation prices.

Hot morning coffee and sweet rolls will be available to early shoppers. Free baby sitting services are to be provided for the mothers as they stroll through the 16 bargain-laden departments. Luncheon will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Day School, said Father Farmer, headmaster of All Saints' Day School, is not self-supporting and depends upon grants and money raising functions such as the rummage sale, as well as tuition from students.

The committee of ladies for the rummage sale is Mrs. George Schroeder, general chairman; Mrs. Richard Bennett, assistant; Mrs. Sid Williams, placement; Mrs. Martin Irwin, supplies; Mrs. Alfred Cooper, pick-up; Miss Elizabeth White, treasurer; Miss Barbara Kynaston and Mrs. Robert Priestley, E.C.W. President.

It's Possible Now

With present knowledge more than 100,000 additional lives could be saved yearly from cancer if everybody acted on the American Cancer Society's advice to seek early diagnosis and prompt treatment. ACS also says: Get an annual health checkup.

Do it Now!

Get a Pap test and help continue to cut down the number of deaths from cancer of the cervix. Ask for a Pap test as part of your regular health checkup, urges the American Cancer Society.

A Signal?

Persistent hoarseness or difficulty in swallowing could be a Warning Signal of cancer. See your physician because only he can tell for sure, the American Cancer Society reminds us.

counselor will be required for every marriage when one or both parties is under the age of 21. This special evaluation is to help the parties assess their maturity and responsibility as well as their marriage preparedness.

--Pre-marriage counseling will be required in those cases which indicate that the parties are not yet ready for a marriage commitment. Finally, a Pre-Cana Conference and the final preparations are made for the wedding.

The purpose of protecting and safeguarding the individuals as well as the strengthening of family life is hoped to be achieved by these new rulings. As a result of this new procedure, individuals may be able to see that there is a reasonable hope for their success or perhaps they may see that there is need for more time, more reflection, and counseling.

These procedures may indicate sufficient difficulties that a couple recognizes they should postpone their wedding or there may be signs that there is no reasonable possibility that a marriage would work out.

Short films to be ecreened

Two Academy Award nominees for animation are included in this year's program: "The Legend of John Henry," produced by Stephen Bosustow Productions and Pyramid Films of Santa Monica, and "Pulcinella," by Emanuele Luzzati and Guilio Gianini of Rome, Italy.

Heinz Hubler, community services officer, said the films are selected by a committee of animation artists and professionals from films produced around the world.

let themselves learn from others their own age.

"Black students are worse off now than they were 10 years ago. The 'open door' policy of a lot of colleges, which lets students come in without a counselor, is to blame. It's like going to a foreign vountry without a map.

"And then, when they do get a black counselor, they'll send them into ethnic studies. That's not what they need."

Sherman also feels not enough stress has been laid upon getting ethnic studies instructors from the local community, ones that will not be afraid of exposing vital, local issues in a way meaningful to students.

"I've learned more from the Black Student Union than from any ethnic studies courses," Sherman said. "The more you learn, the more you want to learn."

Monterey Peninsula College to offer record number of classes in summer

Following the pattern of growth experienced by Monterey Peninsula College during the past several years, the 1975 summer program will offer more classes and college officials expect a higher summer enrollment.

Vincent Bradley, director of continuing education, said MPC will offer more than 200 summer session classes. This is in comparison with the 186 classes offered during the summer of 1975.

In 1958 when MPC held its first summer session, a total of only 32 classes were available.

As in the regular fall and spring semesters, the summer session will feature twilight, weekend and off-campus classes as well as the morning and evening schedule.

Mail registration for summer classes starts Monday, April 28, and class schedules and registration forms are available at local libraries, some schools, police and fire stations and at the MPC Student Services building. The deadline for all mail registration is May 16. After that date, on campus registration will be held June 11-13.

This will be the first summer that off-campus classes will be available.

During the regular year, off-campus class locations are offered not only as a matter of convenience, but because of space limitations on the campus property. Bradley said space won't be a problem during the summer session, but explained the off-campus classes are offered as a matter of convenience to the community.

"People have told us that they go to these classes because they are held in their own communities and because they don't have to spend great amounts of time, money or effort to attend," he said.

The summer session class schedule contains many basic education courses, as well as a variety of special interest subjects. Many MPC students take advantage of the summer program to "get back into phase" by taking basic education courses they were unable to fit into their schedules during the fall or spring semesters. In addition, many local students attending four-year colleges like to pick up lower division units by attending MPC while home for their summer vacations.

There will be a very short break this year between the end of the summer session--the eight-week session runs through August 8--and the beginning of registration for the fall semester. Students and faculty members voted during the past year to move the start of the fall semester up to August 20 in order that the semester could be completed before Christmas, thereby eliminating the traditional "dead period."

Several summer classes may be of special interest.

"The Life and Heritage of California" is a new class which will be offered in the candlelight atmosphere of historic Colton Hall, site of California's first constitutional convention in 1849. Kent Seavy, Monterey County Historical curator will teach the course which is in conjunction with the nation's bicentennial celebration. The course will survey the cultural history of California from the Spanish Era to the present, employing the literature, art, music, of various period of evolution into statehood. The course can be taken for credit in either Humanities of History.

Offered in conjunction with the course is another class called "Field Studies in California History" which will take students on field trips of early California historial sites. Anita Pohlhammer, MPC history instructor, will teach this course.

For this first time, a course in beekeeping will be available. Animal Science 600, "Beekeeping Institute," will offer students fundamentals in beekeeping, meeting from 9 a.m. to noon on June 21 and 28 and July 12.

Another first is the series of auto mechanic classes being held this summer. Auto Technology 251 consists of courses with day lecture and night lab hours, and Auto Technology 290 consists of two classes in special problems, with hours by arrangement.

Sailing is offered for the second summer as Nautical Science 601. This course consists of lecture and actual sailing sessions and covers basic skills of sailing.

Real Estate 601, "Real Estate Mathematics," is a practical course in real estate problems. and will cover problems frequently found in state real estate licence exams.

Two physical education courses are being offered during twilight hours for persons whose busy schedules make it difficult to attend classes during regular hours. These are PE 113, "Advanced Tennis," which meets daily from 4:10 p.m. to 5 p.m., and PE 195, "Advanced Fitness Through Swimming," which has two four-week sessions meeting from 4:10 to 6 p.m. daily. The sessions will run from June 16 to July 11 and July 14 to Aug. 8.

Off-campus courses offered during the summer session include:

Administration of Justice 606, "Orientation of Law Enforcement," meeting Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Monterey Police Department.

Ethnic Studies 195, "Conversational Tagalog," which meets Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 6:45 to 9:45 p.m. in Seaside.

The fifth annual "Julius Baker Flute Workshop" is offered at the Hidden Valley Music Seminar in Carmel Valley. A detailed brochure will be available from the MPC Community Services office.

The Hidden Valley Summer Music Institute will consist of the chorale session from June 15 to July 18; the orchestral session running from July 29 to Aug. 30 and the lute masters session held from Sept. 1-14.
